

DUKE WILL WELCOME PARTICIPANTS

Outstanding among the scores of native stone buildings on the Duke university campus is the magnificent Gothic chapel, with its graceful 310-foot tower, its 50-bell carillon, the 7,791-pipe organ, the beautiful stained glass windows, stone statuary, wood carvings, and wrought iron work.

Landmark of one of the nation's most impressive college campuses, the Duke chapel is visited each year by thousands of people from all over the country. And hundreds more will be viewing this inspiring structure when Duke and Durham play host to the United States Badminton Championships early in April.

The badminton devotees will likewise have opportunity to see the picturesque Sarah P. Duke gardens in early bloom. These gardens --adjoining the roadway which leads to the main quadrangle-- are among the finest in the South.

Duke's athletic facilities will of course be at the disposal of the tournament participants, who will find the huge indoor arena a most modern and complete physical education plant. The Duke gymnasium annex boasts of a spacious swimming pool, which will be thrown open to the visitors for their use throughout the

While the tournament is in progress, players may secure their meals on the Duke campus --at any one of the three large student dining halls, which serve breakfast, ~~dinner~~ lunch and dinner for 35¢ a plate. Also available are the Duke Coffee Shoppe and Sandwich Shoppe as well as the Duke University Store, with its fountain service, drug and toilet articles and souvenirs.
